

The Code of Hammurabi

By: Viggo Pile

Law number 3

This law states that “if someone falsely accuses someone of certain crimes, they shall be put to death.”

Law number 233

This law states that “ if a contractor builds a house for somebody and the walls start to fall, then the builder must use his own money and labor to make the walls secure.”

Law number 5

“If a judge makes an error though his own fault when making a case, he must pay a fine, be removed from the judges bench, and never judge anouther case.”

Summary

The laws that Hammurabi made were his way to success. Some were cruel and some were fair. His empire soon did die because of these laws.
